

CHARLES
LUTWIDGE DODGSON
(LEWIS CARROLL)
1832–1898

MORRIS L. PARRISH was, in the words of Arthur A. Houghton, Jr., “the dean of Carroll collectors.” Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland and Through the Looking-Glass, according to Mr. Parrish, were his inspiration, and, having procured them, he felt that he “must have a copy of everything the author had written.” In 1928 he had privately printed A List of the Writings of Lewis Carroll (Charles L. Dodgson) In the Library at Dormy House, Pine Valley, New Jersey, which was followed in 1933 by A Supplementary List, also privately printed.

If Mr. Parrish was unable, as would be true of any Carroll collector, to acquire a copy of everything Carroll had written, he still formed an impressive collection, particularly strong in items published or issued during the author’s lifetime. The collection included a remarkably large number of Carroll’s elusive pamphlets and leaflets, as well as many binding variants and association copies of the principal books. Other notable, and unusual, items in the collection were four albums of photographs by Carroll; a copy of the celebrated biscuit tin, given to Mr. Parrish by one of Carroll’s sisters; and a leather wallet carefully indexed on the flap in Carroll’s (or, rather, Dodgson’s) hand.

Since Mr. Parrish cared “almost nothing for manuscripts,” it is not surprising that, despite his great interest in Carroll, there were only forty-odd Carroll letters in the collection, which included, on the other hand, the large accumulation of mathematical manuscripts that Carroll left when he died and Carroll’s diary of his trip to Russia, privately printed by Mr. Parrish in 1928 under the title Tour in 1867.

There appears to be no end to Carrolliana, and it would not be difficult to become lost in the thickets of editions, translations, adaptations, parodies, etc. The Library’s course in adding to the Carroll collection has not always been clear, but the main purpose has always been to enhance the core collection and to avoid overwhelming it with peripheral material. Almost the very first items acquired for the Parrish Collection after it came to Princeton were three lots purchased at the Harmsworth sale in 1947, all considerable rarities: American Telegrams (1865), the circular to friends in behalf of an Oxford Graduate in distress (1883), and a variant of the “Stranger Circular” (1890). Four years later the Library was able to purchase, also at auction, an apparently very scarce run of the Parish Magazine of S. Mary Magdalen, St. Leonards-on-Sea, which contains in the November 1897 issue an Address for children by the Rev. C. L. Dodgson. Among other early additions to the collection were three circular letters addressed to Mrs. Villiers Blakemore and signed by Carroll.

The Library has added over the years some three hundred printed items to the collection. The additions have included thirteen presentation copies, including an 1865 Alice, the gift of William H. Scheide; editions and translations, many of the latter the gifts of Warren Weaver; biographical, bibliographical, and critical works; twenty-seven photographs by Carroll; and five books from the libraries of members of the Dodgson family.

The Library has also added to the collection some sixty letters written by Carroll, as well as fourteen letters to him from William Holman Hunt, John Ruskin, and others; the manuscript of an acrostic addressed to Alice Crompton; and "Story of the three sisters," eight pen-and-ink sketches on one side of a sheet, drawn by Carroll for May Mileham while on a train trip. Included among other additions are six pencil sketches by Henry Holiday and five proofs for illustrations for The Hunting of the Snark (1876); six pen-and-ink drawings by Harry Furniss for Sylvie and Bruno Concluded (1893); a pen-and-ink drawing by F. Carruthers Gould for Hector H. Munro's The Westminster Alice (1902); a pen-and-ink caricature of Dodgson by Burr Shafer for The Saturday Review of Literature (1948); and a preparatory sketch in pencil by Carlo Pellegrini ("Ape") for a caricature of Dean Liddell published in Vanity Fair (1875). Also acquired were the manuscript libretto of "Alice in Wonderland," performed in the Shepard Memorial Church, Cambridge, Massachusetts, on December 15, 1898, signed by the cast and management, mainly students or graduates of Harvard, M.I.T., Radcliffe, and Wellesley; the autograph manuscript of Derek Hudson's biography of Lewis Carroll (1954); and the first draft of Hudson's British Council pamphlet on Carroll (1958).

Inscription on free front endpaper: It occurred [sic] to my brother, the Rev. Edwin H. Dodgson, (when he was living with us at "the Chestnuts" after being invalided home after years of missionary work at Tristan & elsewhere), that those portions of my eldest brother Lewis Carroll's "Sylvie & Bruno," which referred only to Sylvie & Bruno themselves, would make a very delightful book for children, and he spent much time & thought over the arrangement of this little volume. Louisa F. Dodgson—March 19, 1927.
